CONGRESS.

WASHINGTON, April 10, SENATE.

After prayer the chair was vacated for the Chief Justice and the Court was opened by Mr. Justice Chase.

The journal of yesterday was read. The gallery was about half filled. Gen. Sherman again occupied a seat on the floor. Mr. Curtis, of counsel for the President, assumed his opening at 15 minutes past 12.

Mr. Curtis commenced by referring to the statement made by Mr. Butler, that the President's letter to the Secretary of the Treasury notifying him of the suspension of Mr. Stanton and the letter of the Secretary of the Treasury under the Constitution.

The charges made in the second article were then discussed by Mr. Curtis, who proceeded to argue that Mr. Stanton did not come within the provisions of the section alleged to be violated. He said the first two sections of the act of 1867, which gave the President authority to suspend, were repealed by the act of 1868.

Mr. Curtis then referred to the act of 1868, which gave the President authority to suspend, and to the act of 1869, which gave the President authority to suspend.
